Rifle Matches—1903

THE eighteenth annual rifle, carbine and revolver competitions of the National Guard of Pennsylvania were held on the State rifle range at Mt. Gretna, Pa., during the week beginning August 24, 1903, and showed a general improvement over the work of the previous year, although the teams generally suffered from lack of previous practice. The exchange of arms, by which the troops secured the Krag-Jorgensen rifle, made necessary a change in the rifle ranges of the State in order that absolute safety might be the rule. As a result many of the teams had no place to practice pending the changes in ranges.

The Regimental match was won by the Sixth Regiment by six points over the First and Thirteenth Regiments, who had tied for second place. The Brigade match was won by the First Brigade by thirty points. The Skirmish cup was won finally by the Thirteenth Regiment which had a lead of forty-nine points over the Eighth Regiment, its nearest competitor. This was the eighth contest for this cup, the Thirteenth being the only regiment to win it more than once. The First and Second Troops divided the cavalry honors, the former winning the Cavalry match and the latter the Cavalry Skirmish match. Captain Mehard of the First Regiment, won the Inspector of Rifle Practice match and Sergeant Gunning, of the Sixteenth Regiment, the All-Comers match. The Officers' Revolver match was won by Captain Mehard, of the First Regiment, while Corporal Reeves, of the Second Troop, captured both the Expert Revolver match and the Enlisted Men's Revolver match. The Trexler Trophy match was won by the Third Brigade.

Two new records were made, the First Brigade exceeding the old record by ten points in the Brigade match, and Captain Mehard adding eleven points to the Inspector's match.

The following are the complete scores of the matches:

THE National Guard of Pennsylvania comes nearer to the regular service in its method of clothing, camping, cooking and target practice than any other that I am familiar with, and all of its orders and regulations seem to be based upon the United States Army orders and regulations. It is, therefore, not deemed practicable to recommend any very radical changes in this organization."

The foregoing from the report of Lieutenant Colonel Walter Howe, Artillery Corps, U. S. A., who was detailed to observe and report upon the N. G. P. during its tour of duty in camp last summer, is high praise indeed. We, of Pennsylvania, have always contended that our Guard was as near to the "real thing," the Army, as it was possible to get troops of similar service. We haven't gone about sounding our own praises through the bells of brazen bugles, or the more insiduous method of printers' ink. We haven't claimed "superiority" in the public prints, but we have simply gone ahead on the lines laid down by the wisdom of our headquarters and the praise that was our due comes to us unsolicited, thereby being the more valuable.

The inspection of the Pennsylvania Guard by the officers of the Inspector General's Department, work during which Lieutenant Colonel Howe made his observations resulting in the soldier-like commendations quoted from his report, is now the theme of interest among officers and men of the Guard, through the publication, in General Orders, of the ratings accorded the several organizations according to the system in vogue.

The results of the ratings are in some cases quite surprising. That the Eighth Infantry would have a high rating was a foregone conclusion, but that it should lead the Infantry arm of the service was, indeed, a surprise, and Colonel Hutchinson and his officers and men are to be congratulated. Their position of pre-eminence in a body of soldiers which comes nearer to the regular Army than anything a professional critic has seen, is one of which any organization has a right to be proud.

But while we acclaim the Eighth Infantry, we must not forget that there was another surprise in the report, and that was the almost incomprehensible knock-out given the Third Infantry. The figures of the inspectors are not to be questioned. They are cold, hard, mathematical facts; and the Third, which has been steadily winning a way to the top during the past few years, has met with a rebuff which is as hard to understand as it is discouraging to the officers and men of that excellent regiment. Space forbids, in this issue, of more than a brief resume of the results of the ratings, but the following tables gives the standing of the several organizations:

Taking up the ratings attained this year and comparing them with former years the several organizations stand thus in order of merit, the numerals, 1, 2, 3, etc., standing for the relative general average:

Infantry	1903	1902	1901	1900

The magnificent general averages obtained by the cavalry arm of the First Brigade puts that unit of the N. G. P. ahead of the other two brigades, for the first time. The standing by brigades is as follows:

	Personal appearance.	Evolutions of the Regiment.	Extended order	Guard duty	Discipline.	Advance anr rear guard, outpost duty, etc.	Ceremonies.	Clothing.	Books and papers.	General average.
First Brigade	95.43	94.1	83.4	91.2	95.3	88	98.66	94.3	98.73	93
Third Brigade	96.54	92.4	83.5	91.1	94.1	90.03	94.93	93.4	98.21	92.91
Second Brigade	93.35	91.1	89	87.4	94	89	92	90	97.05	91.48

WHILE the officers and men of the Third Regiment are greatly disappointed at their low rating, and while it is generally understood that this is largely due to the fact that one of the Battalion Commanders during a severe rain storm took his command from the field without orders, the fact remains that the Third Infantry is looked upon by the United States Army officers in a different light and we can only repeat Colonel Tilghman's saying, that if the State of Pennsylvania has thirteen regiments better than the Third, then they have a very excellent Guard.

Extract from the report of Lieutenant Colonel Walter Howe, A. C. Assistant to Inspector General, Department of the East. General Orders, No. 37.

Of course there was many defects in the drills, but all the organizations had a large per centage of new men, who had come there imperfectly instructed in company drill and manual of arms at their home stations; they had come for instruction and drill; they had but seven days to drill in, and the small size of the companies necessitated their being put in whether they were well drilled or not; but there was no time wasted, and the industry of both officers and men is highly to be commended. The ground was under a state of cultivation on almost every side of the camp, and did not, therefore, lend itself to field exercises. But Lieutenant Colonel B. C. Tilghman, Jr., Third Regiment, got up a very creditable problem, in outpost duty, and resistance to an advancing enemy of Cavalry by a regiment of Infantry, which I herewith enclose in full, marked "F." The very excellent map of the country was prepared by Lieutenant Colonel Tilghman, Jr., from a reconnoissance made by himself, and the instructions were his own. The plan was submitted to me for approval before being carried out. I witnessed the posting of the outposts and advanced guards the next day on two of the four roads involved. They were posted with judgment and intelligence. Of course when the Infantry were driven in on the left flank in accordance with the previously arranged plan, the cultivated fields prevented a proper use of troops, but the problem was instructive to all concerned, and of a very practical nature.

NOTES

First Regiment

After a long and honorable service of twenty-five years, Captain Henry Nuss, Jr., retires from active service as Commander of Company "C," which he brought to a high standard of efficiency, and it is stated that its company fund exceeds all others in the Regiment. Captain Nuss will shortly entertain his company with a farewell dinner. Lieutenant Maurer will be the able successor of Captain Nuss.

Ex-Members of Company "F," who served from 1880 to 1890, are arranging to hold a reunion and banquet. Mr. Louis A. Bush is acting secretary, and former members of "noisy" "F" will confer a great favor by communicating their addresses to him, care of City Hall, Philadelphia, Pa.

Ninth Regiment

The Ninth Infantry has had a number of changes recently, the most important one being that of Regimental Adjutant. Owing to pressure of business, Captain Harold G. Frantz found it necessary to resign, and Colonel Dougherty's command loses one of the ablest executive officers in the State. The new appointee, Captain Carleton C. Jones, is a well-known and popular young officer of Wilkes-Barre. He is identified with one of the leading banks of the town and will no doubt prove of sterling worth to the regiment. He was First Sergeant of Company "K," Battalion Adjutant, and served during the Spanish-American War as a non-commissioned officer in the Connecticut Light Artillery, commonly known as the "Yale Battery."

Lieutenant Sterling, who succeeded Captain Jones as Battalion Adjutant, was one of the original organizers of Company "K," in which he served as Quartermaster Sergeant and First Lieutenant.

First Lieutenant Fred. W. Reese, of Company "L," located at Nanticoke, has resigned from the service owing to pressure of business.

Former Battalion Sergeant Major Victor Luchsinger has returned to the ranks of Company "M" at his own request.

Thirteenth Regiment

Captain Maurice E. Clemens, Company "I," Thirteenth Regiment, is up against a very tough proposition. Within several months twenty-six enlistments will have expired, and the outlook for re-enlistment is not very encouraging. There is also a growing feeling that the company should be attached to the Fourth Infantry in place of the Thirteenth, as the headquarters of the latter regiment is over one hundred miles away, and the officers and men are put to great individual expense in attending meetings and other official requirements at Scranton. It is pointed out by the members of Company "I" that their assignment to the Fourth Infantry would give them a good opportunity for battalion work with the Allentown companies, which are located but a few miles away. Colonel O'Neill's command at the present comprises ten companies located in Allentown, Reading, Hamburg, Pottsville, Pine Grove, Lebanon, Columbia and Lancaster, all on the line of the Reading Railroad. It has been suggested that the Twelfth Company might be drawn from the Sixth Infantry, which has a Company ("G") located at Doylestown, Bucks County.

Battery "B"

All the officers of Battery "B" are now equipped with the new regulation dress cap.

Lieutenant Clarence H. Powell, who has been associated with the Battery since 1891, tendered his resignation to Captain William T. Rees, so that he could affiliate himself with one of the Pittsburg regiments.

Battery "B" has taken up athletics to promote the interests of the organization, and has put in the field one of the strongest basket-ball teams in this end of the State; this team holds weekly practice with the Duquesne Country and Athletic team, which carried off the championship of Western Pennsylvania for the past three years.

Saturday, December 19th, will mark the fifth anniversary of the reorganization of Hampton Battery into the National Guard of Pennsylvania, following the Spanish-American War, and will be celebrated in a fitting manner by a "bean-bake" and vaudeville entertainment. The committee on arrangements include Lieutenants Ryall and Burns, Sergeant Leffler, Corporal Francis and Private Kearfoot.

State

Adjutant General Stewart has decided to allow officers who are on the retired list to qualify as marksmen, if they furnish their own ammunition and do so at their own expense, and will issue to them the decorations to which they may be entitled. This ruling is made because under the present law the officers on the retired list are liable for duty in any capacity except in command of troops, and are therefore a part of the military establishment of the State.

ARMORY,
SECOND TROOP, PHILADELPHIA CITY CAVALRY, N. G. P.,
TWENTY-THIRD AND CHESTNUT STREETS.

Philadelphia, October 30, 1903.

Order No. 9.

I. Beginning October 30, 1903, military fencing will be required as part of the drill, and instruction therein will be given in the Armory on regular drill nights. About January 1st, the instructor in charge will report to the Commanding Officer the names of those showing the most proficiency, and from these a class will be organized for work outside the Armory, on other than drill nights, with a view to developing a Troop fencing team.

FRANK E. SCHERMERHORN,
Captain.

MAJOR W. FRED. REYNOLDS

One of the best-known officers in the State of Pennsylvania is Major W. Fred. Reynolds, Ordnance Officer on General Wiley's staff (Second Brigade). He is, however, more generally known as Colonel Reynolds, having served for many years on the staffs of the several Commanders-in-Chief. His practical and thorough knowledge of military matters was best demonstrated at Camp McKinley, where he was Acting Provost Marshal. By his systematic and careful instruction of the Guard there was little or no disorder in the town of Somerset, which the writer knows from conversation with some of the representative citizens who thoroughly appreciated the good work. As an instance in this connection, a prominent hotel keeper stated that he had no time for the National Guard excepting for what was in it, and, that two years ago, he was compelled to employ eight bartenders day and night, but owing to the new order of conditions imposed by Major Reynolds during the tour of duty at Camp McKinley, the "patronage" had fallen off so that it only required himself and one bartender to wait on the soldiers.

On page 5 we give an illustration of the Bellefonte Armory, which was erected by Colonel Reynolds for Company "B" of the Fifth Infantry at an expense of $35,000. It is without exception the handsomest and most substantial company armory in the State, and stands out as a monument to the donor.

On July 13, 1893, Colonel Reynolds was appointed Lieutenant Colonel and Aide-de-Camp on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief, and reappointed March 23, 1895. His commission expired January 18, 1899. He was made Captain and Adjutant of the Fifth Regiment Infantry on September 9, 1899. He resigned March 21, 1900, and was appointed Aide-de-Camp with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel on the staff of the Commander-in-Chief, February 15, 1901, and subsequently to his present position.

Colonel Reynolds is somewhat of a gentleman farmer, practically supervising three thousand acres of the best land in Centre County. He is also a Director of the Pennsylvania Match Company, First National Bank, Bellefonte Fuel and Supply Company, Potter-Hoy Hardware Company, Providence Engineering Works. He is also a thirty-second degree Mason and Past Commander of Constans Commandery, Knights Templar, and is an active member of the Sons of the Revolution.

QUARTERMASTER HUGH CRAIG, Jr.

Among the many men of note who have been connected with the National Guard of Pennsylvania, men who have given their time, their money and their brains to foster the love for martial matters, and thereby inculcate love for their martial alma mater and reverence for the flag they serve under, there stands out one who is pre-eminently the type of the citizen soldier, Hugh Craig, Jr., of the First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry.

For thirty-five years he has been a member of the First Troop, serving from private to quartermaster and for a number of years has been treasurer of the civil corporation. During the period of his connection with the Troop there has never been anything happening in which the Troop participated but what Hugh Craig was first and foremost. He has given his time, he has given his money, and he has given intelligent administration in every position he has occupied. Furthermore, he has given that fostering care to everything connected with the Troop which could only be bestowed by one whose love for the organization in which he gained his military education is paramount.

The present armory of the First Troop bears mute evidence in many ways of the love and work of "Hughey" Craig. He watched the erection with the care of a young lover building the home for his heart's dearest treasure; he superintended the interior embellishment with an eye single to the needs and comforts of his comrades, and he guards the honor of the famous old Troop of Horse, as he guards his own honor, that of a gentleman of Philadelphia.

His fostering care is manifest in everything appertaining to the Troop. Is there a team to contest at the targets? Craig is there, generally before the men arrive, seeing that everything is provided that may aid his comrades in carrying off the prize. Is there a youngster of the line, who is ambitious for the chevrons of a non-com.? Craig is with him giving him pointers culled with wisdom from his own years of service. Is there a non-com. elected to a commission and ordered before the Board of Examination? Craig gives up everything to be with the young man with words of encouragement, and stands by him until the ordeal is over. There is not one thing connected with the Troop which is too small to engage his attention. Always for its betterment is his work conducted.

The youngsters of the Troop call him, with respect, "Field Marshal." Any other title, to their minds, being too small to be connected with such a man as their mentor. His comrades of years standing, his familiars, call him "Hughey," and if every organization of the National Guard of Pennsylvania could have a "Field Marshal," "Hughey" Craig as a member, the N. G. P. would be the wonder of the military world.

SEA GIRT MATCHES.

The State Team.

At the conclusion of the State matches, at Mt. Gretna, Colonel Frank K. Patterson, General Inspector of Rifle Practice, selected the following team to represent the State in the National Match and the Dryden Trophy Match:

Major David S. B. Chew, Ordnance Officer, First Brigade, team captain; Major William P. Clarke, Inspector Third Brigade, Team Adjutant; Lieutenant Colonel William F. Richardson, Division Quartermaster, Team Quartermaster; Lieutenant J. Mark Peters, Eighth Regiment, Team Surgeon; Captain William deV. Foulke, Second Regiment, Coach; Captain George B. Shields, Fifth Regiment, Assistant Coach; Sergeant John B. Maull, Sixth Regiment, Spotter; Sergeant John C. Blair, Eighteenth Regiment, Clerk, and the following team members: Private Leizear, Sixth Regiment; Major Kemp, Third Regiment; Sergeant Moore, Thirteenth Regiment; Private Perkins, Second Regiment; Private Burton, Sixth Regiment; Corporal Hay, Fourteenth Regiment; Private Gamble, First Regiment; Captain Bergstresser, Eighth Regiment; Captain Hammers, Fifth Regiment; Captain Darte, Ninth Regiment; Private Blackhall, Fourteenth Regiment; Corporal Brink, Thirteenth Regiment; Private Porterfield, Sixth Regiment; Private Slopey, Twelfth Regiment; Sergeant Dunn, Eighth Regiment.

The Squadron team selected was as follows:

Cornet Bates, First Troop; Lieutenant Nicodemus, Governor's Troop; Corporal Reeves, Second Troop; Sergeant Merrill, First Troop; Corporal Bower, First Troop; Trooper Witmer, First Troop, and Lieutenant Wood, First Troop.

The work of the team at Sea Girt was all that could have been hoped for under the circumstances, and was therefore satisfactory. When it is remembered that the 1000 yards range at Mt. Gretna was only completed the day before the close of the State matches, and that rain prevented its use for practice, it will be seen just how much handicapped the team was. But three or four had never shot on the long ranges, and scarcely any practice could be had on them at Sea Girt. Some of the men went into the National match with practically no long range practice. One man, in particular, had fired but five shots at 800 yards and had never fired a shot at 900 yards. Others had much the same experience. These were the circumstances under which the Pennsylvania team shot at Sea Girt this year.

Army management of the National Match, it was said, would do away violations of the rules, but failed to accomplish much in that line. It was freely stated after the National match that Pope barrels and special ammunition were used by the leading teams, giving them a great advantage over the others and accounting for their good work.

As a matter of fact, under the more strict supervision given the Dryden match, the teams which made the big scores were but a few points better than Pennsylvania, which was only twenty-four points behind the winner, and but six points behind New Jersey, while it led Massachusetts twenty-one points.

The work in the target pits was miserable, the worst the writer has ever encountered

THE NATIONAL MATCH.

Shot on September 8 and 9, 1903.

Open to teams of 12 men from the following:

a. The Army of the United States, one team from the troops stationed within each of the military departments.

INDIVIDUAL MATCHES.

The Pennsylvanians made their impression upon the individual matches and were well up in most of them.

Sergeant Charles Moore, of the Thirteenth Regiment, was the only winner of an individual match and he captured the Meany gold medal.

In the Inspectors match Private Leizear, of the Sixth Regiment, was third. His score was 94, while that of the winner was 95. Captain Jeffords, Third Regiment, was fourth, with 94.

The Leach Cup match was won with a score of 94. Major Kemp, of the Third Regiment, was fifth, with a score of 90. Captain Jeffords, Third Regiment, made a score of 85.

In other matches members of the Pennsylvania team shot well and, taking it all together, the time was profitably spent.
